

Chart of Ethics

International Viticulture and Enology Society (IVES)

Introduction:

The International Viticulture and Enology Society (IVES) is a non-profit association dedicated to the dissemination of scientific research in viticulture and enology. IVES publishes 3 online media: OENO One, a peer-reviewed journal (launched in 2016), IVES Technical Reviews, a journal to transfer current research to end users (launched in 2020) and IVES Conference Series a platform collating proceedings from international conferences in viticulture and enology (launched in 2021). Our 3 media are editorially independent of our private partners and are published on free online publishing platforms independent of private publishers. Our three media adhere to a general code of ethics in its publication activities.

Private and institutional partners are engaged alongside IVES to participate in the free dissemination of high level scientific knowledge.

The private partner “.....”:

- states that, by supporting IVES, it has no direct commercial objectives targeting the readers of the journals or its members or partners;
- undertakes no attempt to influence the editorial policy of the IVES’ media and does not undertake actions with the aim of favoring its interests during events or meetings organized by the association;
- will not be allowed to distribute advertising, communication or services via the websites, mailing lists or meetings of IVES. Only the logo and/or the name of the company will be displayed on the IVES website. Any other form of communication will have to be mutually agreed upon by IVES and the partner;
- is encouraged and free to disseminate, any information concerning IVES, its journals and the partnership via its own channels.

If the conditions of the Chart of Ethics are not met, the Executive Committee of IVES can exclude the partner.

Signed on behalf of (Entity name and address):

By (name of delegate and position):

Acting under delegated authority (date, signature and Entity stamp):